Child Helpline International

Using data for international policy and research – lessons and insights
The Global Network of Child Helplines: Membership as of October 2011

CHI has members in 133 countries.
Child Helplines use ICTs to reach children
Data to monitor Violence against children

Thematic research

Develop child protection services

Policy/practice Influencing

Child helplines in the national child protection system

www.childhelplineinternational.org
Data at Child Helpline International – Examples
Perpetrators of abuse - 2010

- Physical abuse - male: 60%
- Physical abuse - female: 50%
- Sexual abuse - male: 40%
- Sexual abuse - female: 50%
- Emotional abuse - male: 50%
- Emotional abuse - female: 52%
- Neglect - male: 48%
- Neglect - female: 53%
- Bullying - male: 52%
- Bullying - female: 63%
Reasons for contact world - 2010

- Abuse and Violence: 19%
- Psycho-social, mental health: 17%
- Peer Relationships: 15%
- Sexuality: 14%
- Family Relationships: 12%
- Other: 13%
- School Related: 5%
- Homelessness/Runaway's/Basic needs: 5%
Data at Child Helpline International – Experiences and insights
Theory
Reality
- Definitions
- Collection method
- Hardware and software

Network level

- Information collected
- Collection method

Secretariat level

- Lack of expertise in software and statistics
- Limited capacity (manpower) and funds
Level of detail of information requested

Demands that can be put on members
Near future
Simplify collected data

External expertise

More integrated approach

Simplify collected data
Thank you!

For more information

johan@childhelplineinternational.org
www.childhelplineinternational.org