

CHILD-LED WORKSHOPS ARE SHAPING GOVERNMENTAL POLICIES ON VIOLENCE AGAINST CHILDREN

Category: Children advocating, mobilizing, raising awareness, informing and communicating

Europe, North America, and Others: United Kingdom

Children in the UK have developed media resources and lesson plans to deliver peer-led workshops on a range of topics related to violence against children. The adolescents in 'Integrate UK' have reached over 7,000 children through workshops, and have played an instrumental role in transforming school policy and practice through youth-led Equality Councils. They tackle topics such as gender and racial inequality, racism, Islamophobia, honour-based violence, sexual abuse, and violence against women and girls including FGM. They work directly with their peers and decision-makers in campaigns to develop and change governmental policies.
